2. The Goleniewski-Romanov Case by Guy Richards is announced for September publication. It was originally to have been published by another publisher late in 1965 but it has not yet appeared. The publisher's blurb states that Goleniewski "has given the CIA an impressive list of Communist agents, including 19 Americans, who have been or are presently working in high places to aid the USSR. Guy Richards, editor of the World-Journal-Herald, has tracked down the Goleniewski story against formidable opposition." The publisher is Devin-Adair.

3. Washington Exposé by Jack Anderson should be available shortly. It includes a chapter entitled "Spies and Spooks" which may possibly include the type of material which has appeared in his column with Drew Pearson recently. The publisher is Public Affairs Press.

4. Secret Service: Thirty-Three Centuries of Espionage is a re-issue of the late Richard W. Rowan's excellent comprehensive history of the subject originally published in 1937, now up-dated by Robert Diendorfer. The book will contain an introduction by Allen Dulles and is scheduled for November publication by Hawthorn Books.

5. The Codebreakers by David Kahn is announced for publication on 21 November by Macmillan. This is the comprehensive history of cryptography of which you are already aware. Advertising is scheduled in the New York Times Book Review and in scientific media.

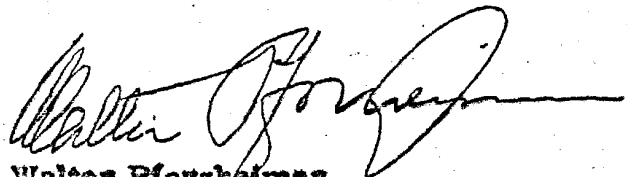

6. A 95¢ paperback edition of The Penkovskiy Papers is announced for November publication by Avon Books. The blurb notes that the book has been a national bestseller for 5 months and hails Penkovskiy as "the greatest spy of our time."
